Urban Health Project Annual Report 2021

As UHP’s 34th summer comes to an end, we would like to thank and congratulate our interns for continuing in the greatness of their predecessors. We would also like to express how much of an honor and privilege it was to serve as co-directors. As Co-directors, we had the privilege of helping UHP continue to grow and to witness the impact it has in the community. Through the interns, UHP continued to not only grow, but also to model active compassion for the underserved.

In the summer of 2020, UHP placed 21 interns with 19 community partners spread across Southwestern Ohio and Northern Kentucky. Our interns worked with many different populations representing the diverse spectrum of our community. Over the course of eight weeks, our interns provided over 5,850 hours of service directly impacting over 5,600 individuals. UHP interns developed new projects aimed at quality improvement and community service. For example, interns taught kids the importance of nutrition and good hand hygiene, ran workshops on healthy cooking and exercise for women in shelters, and organized health fairs for migrant workers. In 2021, UHP continues to grow and impact the community in spite of the challenges COVID-19 presented. We have been able to form new partnerships, strengthen old connections and recruit a new class of interns motivated to carry on the legacy of compassion. In 2020, interns have continued to volunteer with their sites, carried on research and presented at conferences. We have passed on the torch to a new group of interns with 2 highly capable and passionate Co-directors, Dalton Harwick and Zohabe Bakali, to help UHP strive to reach new heights. We are excited to witness new developments and encourage continued excellence. All of this could not have been done without the guidance of our advisory board and the support of our alumni and funders. Therefore, thank you for your commitment to community and the mission of UHP.

From our interns:

"These conversations allowed me to gain new insights into the personal life circumstances of the women, as well as their priorities and thought processes."

-Tessa Keiser, Class of 2023

"Meeting this man and hearing this story reminds me why I chose to work at a shelter this summer, and why it is so important to work to help those overlooked by society - because one day all that work might really allow someone to change their life."

-Matt Altman, Class of 2023

"It's interesting trying to teach someone how to be a better leader when it's not really a skill I find myself great at."

-Andrea Oliver, Class of 2023

Impact:

- Interns generated a $75,000 community impact
- Interns engaged over 5,600 community members
- Interns contributed over 5,800 hours of service

UHP Board of Advisors

UHP's mission would be impossible without our board of advisors. On behalf of our interns and alumni we thank them for their ongoing support, insight, and dedication to this unique program.
