
UHP 2021-2022 Annual Report

Dalton Hartwick
Zohabe Bakali

- 23 Interns placed at 19 sites across Greater Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky
- Held multiple social events, educational seminars, team building exercises, hands-on activities, and a successful Committed to Community conference where all interns presented posters about their summer work.
- Interns reported a great appreciation and understanding of social determinants of health through their UHP experience.
- Passed the torch to new co-directors, Alec Murphy and Pooja Kanthawar!

Our Mission

Urban Health Project educates, inspires, and challenges medical students through their service to vulnerable populations in Greater Cincinnati to produce more socially responsible physicians who have a greater understanding of factors that impact health.

Our Impact

Over 7,000 Service Hours
Over $90,000 in Community Impact
Over 6,500 Community Members

From our interns:

"Having the opportunity to be out in the community more provided me with increased appreciation of how valuable building connections within communities and identifying community strengths are when serving a particular community."

"In my future career as a physician, I can take these tools on how to educate my patients so that they are aware of their current health status and how to make health choices. As doctors, we are also educators, and we should use our voice and our knowledge to help make our communities healthier through education."

"As a future physician, diversity in a patient population is something everyone needs to be accustomed to. Learning how to listen to different voices, understand different cultures, and uplift those that are not used to being heard, is part of the healing journey that a physician embarks on with their patient. Each week, with every meeting, guest speaker, conference, or more, I get to hear voices that I don't think would have been spot-lighted anywhere else."
